

~ Burial Planning ~

Written by: Joan Pacinabo

She wants to spend her dying days to her love ones
Most especially to her family
And then to the only jewel of her heart
She wants to bring happy memories when she depart

She wants to donate her body organs
And be cremated
She wants the mourners to bring nothing
But their body, rights and spirits
Most importantly is some money in your pocket
And the proceeds her family will going to donate it
She will give instruction in her last will and testament

She wants everyone to dress in all white
She wants the room painted like clouds
She also wants it to be so bright
And play her chosen sounds

There would be lots of chocolate foods served
No liquors but juice's and tea's well chilled
White roses and tulips are one of the decorations
It would be so nice if there's live band in action

The celebration will last for three days
She wants to hear everyone sing
Or read a romantic love poem
Or perform the music of Maksim

She wants her ash to unite with the salt water
She don't want to see someone shed a tear
For it's not goodbye but see you later
We're going to see each other again somewhere
The ending is a fireworks display
And a pouring rain background music play.
